STATEREVENUE FORCES BAR OUT, STATES ATKINSON

Heads of Georgia Railway and Power Company Declare That a Policy of Retrenchment Is Necessary.

PETITIONS ARE FOUGHT BY PROMINENT CITIZENS

Better Times Are Near, and There Is No Reason for Reduction of Service, They Tell Commission.

In presenting the final plea of the Georgia Railway and Power company, whose petition to discontinue certain extra car services on fourteen different lines was heard by the state railroad commission on Wednesday and vigorously protested in person by more than one hundred citizens, H. M. Atkinson, vice president of the corporation, declared before the commission that, owing to the falling off of the revenues of the company in the last several months, retrenchment is necessary.

The argument for both sides was concluded on Wednesday and the commission took the matter under advisement. At the opening of the hearing Wednesday morning President Preston Arkwright, of the street railway commission, stated that during the last three or four months of 1914 the average decrease in revenues under the corporation was 11.5 per cent, and that the average decrease for 1915 was over 10.0 per cent.

Citizens Protest. The hearing was productive of many vigorous protests, most of the protesters declaring that they are not now receiving the service they should have, and that the proposal to reduce this service is ample cause for indignation. It was also declared that the street railway company is taking a pessimistic view of the outlook, and is selling its retrenchment petition just at a time when business will warrant them to continue their present services.

Atkinson stated as follows: "I do not know that I should mention this matter in this connection, Mr. Chairman. But the expenditures of the company last year were over $11,000,000 in cash for hydro-electric developments."

"This, of course, has no bearing upon the proposed changes in street car service, but it is a fact, however, that a financial problem, which the company has to deal with, and one which the citizens of Atlanta, and the people of Georgia should be vitally interested in, if it had been known that the present financial depression is not a temporary one, but a permanent one, it would have been a different matter."

Conditions Are Serious. "We feel that conditions confronting us are serious. Therefore we ask that you grant this petition in so far as you possibly can. If you do not, we have to ask your consent we would be forced to shut down the service in the next few days. The granting of this petition would have a most favorable effect upon the financial centers where we must go for help. Whatever may be your decision in this matter, we will abide by it cheerfully."

Arkwright Shows Patience. President Arkwright presented to the commission a mass of statistics and figures showing the status of the railroad and the street railway for the last four months of the year 1914, going into the detail of each line and showing the decrease in the same periods of 1913, and as against the same periods of 1912.

WOODWARD OPPOSES FIGHT FOR REDUCE CITY'S PAYROLL

Today a Number of Employees Are in Danger of Losing Out or Having to Work for Smaller Salaries.

CALLS A HALT ON WORK OF FINANCE COMMITTEE

Mayor Shows That It Takes Almost Entire Tax Money for One Year to Meet Payrolls of Departments.

So thoroughly alarmed is Mayor James G. Woodward over big increases shown by the city payroll from year to year, and he so firmly convinced that a cut of $150,000 to $200,000 a year from salaries will not interfere with the operating efficiency of city departments, that he called a halt when the finance committee Wednesday took up salary appropriations and today a number of city employees are in danger of losing their jobs or being reduced.

The mayor has shown to the finance committee that it takes almost the entire tax money for one year to meet the payrolls of all departments, and he is not standing alone in the position that there should be a substantial reduction to permit of a part of the tax revenue being spent for improvements.

Finance Chairman Farthinger and Councilman Inman and Johnson are standing firm with the mayor in his fight for salary economy. Other members of the committee, however, are not so sure, but their views are not as sweeping as the mayor's or those of the finance committee.

Wanted a New Plan. Mayor Woodward said the committee that department heads and boards are taking too much liberty with the tax money paid to the city treasury by the people, and he demanded that after next June the city treasurer be required to reduce the departmental salary plan or system which will not burden the city with the moral obligation of increasing the salaries of any employees.

Operations of burglars kept the police busy throughout last night. Five burglaries were reported. In two instances the intruders were thwarted by the vigilance of occupants.

Mr. Tye secured his rifle and fired in time to take a shot at the intruder as he fled across the front yard of the Peachtree residence.

Neighbors were alarmed by the report of the pistol and the fleeing burglar. The burglar, who was seen by Mrs. S. S. Franklin, No. 3 Peachtree place, and had partially opened the bathroom door to enter the apartment, was seen by Mrs. Franklin as he fled across the front yard of the Peachtree residence.

isolated. In 1857 this town was almost destroyed by an earthquake.

Father Alfani, director of the observatory at Valle di Pompei, the noted seismologist, has sent the following telegram to Rome:

"The earthquake registered by our apparatus appears to have been most disastrous for a radius of more than 100 miles. Probably its center was the province of Potenza. Meanwhile communications with Potenza are interrupted and a grave disaster there is to be feared."

TERROR REIGNED IN ROME.

There was confusion throughout the whole of Rome. In some cases it amounted to terror, and bordered on panic. The telephone was resorted to by great numbers of people at virtually the same time in endeavors to ascertain the safety of relatives and friends, and then to learn the extent of the damage to the city. The telephone girls did their best to meet the emergency. A system of gathering and giving information was hurriedly inaugurated.

It was learned early in the day that among the old buildings damaged was the Palazzo Chigi, as well as the famous column of Marcus Aurelius. Historic buildings on the Piazza Colonna, in the center of Rome, also were damaged, as was also the famous Farnese Palace, occupied by the French embassy. The dome of the Pantheon, cornice had fallen.

The bell of the Church of St. Andrea is in danger of falling, and the building has been surrounded by police to prevent people from approaching it.

Most of the Damaged Towns Are in the Heart of Italy; Noted Quakes of the Past

At a point about half way up the column had been broken and twisted. It was at least six inches from its true axis. The immense bronze statue of St. Paul on top of the column also inclines to one side.

The dome of the Church of St. Charles Calatini was cracked. A large piece of the cornice of the Jewish Church of St. Ignatius fell with a crash, adding to the fright of persons in the neighborhood.

Ceilings in many of the houses fell, a number of persons being injured in this manner.

A colossal statue at the Basilica of St. John in Lateran, which occupied a portion of the cathedral was wrecked; at Rome, tumbled down and was shattered on the steps of the edifice.

Several street car lines were forced to suspend operations.

As details began to arrive it was apparent the disturbance in the province of Rome and The Abruzzi had been greater than at first believed, and that it also had been felt severely around Naples.

DEATHS OF DISASTER FROM MANY POINTS.

At Montetrotto three persons were killed and two wounded; at Zagarolo the dome of a church fell; at Galiano the cathedral was wrecked.

At Veroli two persons were killed and two injured. At Tivoli one person was killed; at Pereto five houses collapsed and at Reggio Native one person was killed and several were injured.

There is no communication with the Abruzzi, owing to interruption of telephone service. It is reported, however, that several villages were destroyed in that vicinity.

A Torre Cajetan, 37 miles east of Rome, almost the entire village was destroyed. Amara the municipal building collapsed.

From numerous places calls for physicians are reaching Rome.

Pope Benedict is reciting the Thanksgiving after the morning mass when the shock occurred. The pontiff retained his composure and gave orders for the evacuation of the Vatican, both inside and outside the Vatican, he ascertained.

KING TO VISIT DAMAGED DISTRICTS.

King Victor Emmanuel also ordered the minister of the interior to furnish him with all details of the earthquake. The king expressed a desire to visit the damaged districts.

At the capital two magnificent cathedrals fell and were broken. At the Palazzo del Drago, where Thomas Nelson, the American ambassador, resides, several cracks in the building, which already had existed, opened wider, and plaster fell in several rooms. Glass was broken in the embassy office.

In addition to the statue of St. Paul on the column of Marcus Aurelius the facade of the Church of St. John Lateran was damaged and the statue of the Savior, 50 feet high, was twisted out of plumb.

In the Lateran palace, especially, that which counted by the Prefecture museum, the earthquake caused cracks big enough to permit outside light to penetrate the building. The hall of the chamber of deputies likewise was damaged.

PEOPLE RUSHED INTO CHURCHES.

Among other edifices damaged were the churches of St. Andrea Fratte and St. Agatha of the Grotto, the latter being the oldest church of Teutonic origin in Rome.

When the shock was felt frightened people rushed into the churches, but the police ordered them out of them, which were in danger of collapsing. In all the churches after the shock had subsided, special prayers were offered for deliverance from disaster.

It is announced officially that the center of the earthquake was between Campobasso and Sarno, and that it fell strongly at Perugia and slightly for northern Perugia.

In the country places the people are in a state of alarm.

The town of Pofi is reported to have been half destroyed. At Galliano two persons were killed.

At the Meteorological institute it is stated that the phenomenon was a tremor for about thirty seconds after the shock had ceased, and that the duration of the phenomenon altogether was about one minute. It was the most violent earthquake since the disturbance extended to Sicily.

New York, January 13.—The reaction yesterday was developed in evidence today and prices declined to a net decline of 3 to 10 points. The opening was at an advance of 1 to 2 points in sympathy with the continued firmness of day pool and some of yesterday's local buyers appeared to be covering on the market. Offerings were not heavy, however, and as prices eased off, buyers were not inclined to bid. Later, however, the spot situation in the interior, particularly in the southern, failed to confirm these reports, but the market continued to ease off. The day pool situation in the interior, particularly in the southern, failed to confirm these reports, but the market continued to ease off. The day pool situation in the interior, particularly in the southern, failed to confirm these reports, but the market continued to ease off.

Private wires from spot sources in Alabama said that the market was rather quiet in tone, but there were numerous advices from Texas, Georgia and other states claiming that the cotton situation was firm and that it was impossible to make a cotton crop at this season. Part of the southern selling here was believed to be for cotton to be shipped to the interior. There was also considerable selling in the interior, particularly in the southern, but the market continued to ease off. The day pool situation in the interior, particularly in the southern, failed to confirm these reports, but the market continued to ease off.

Chicago, January 13.—Unlimited and at times excited buying was the rule in wheat today, with exporters and millers racing for supplies. The market closed strong at 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 cents above last. Corn finished 1/4 to 1/2 cent lower. Corn unchanged, 1/4 to 1/2 cent above last. It was said at the end of business that nearly all of the Chicago stock of wheat had been shipped, and that foreign buyers were working energetically on buying wheat at Buffalo and Duluth. Inability to purchase from the interior, except at a radical advance, had a marked influence. At the highest prices reached to within 1/2 cent of the topmost quotations since the beginning of the war. The market was filled up of stocks of corn neutralized by the wheat situation. The wheat was held down by heavy selling by one of the largest houses here. Crude oil and for recent buyers pulled provisions down.
